DOMESTIC GOAT

CREATIVE CLIMBERS

Have you seen the goats climbing at the Zoo? Goats have cloven hooves (hooves with two “toes”) which they use to grip rocks and logs. This allows wild goats to climb high up on cliffs to find plants to eat. At Reid Park Zoo, the animal care team places food up on the logs for the goats to exercise their natural climbing skills.

Draw in some logs and rocks for the goats to climb on!
Add a snack for them to eat!
