ALLIGATOR

TERRIFIC TEETH

Baby alligators are really lucky to have such protective mommas. There are many animals in a swamp that might want to eat a baby alligator. Luckily, baby alligators have the protection of their mother and her teeth! If there is danger, baby alligators call their mom by making grunting noises; their mom will come and scoop them out of the water, using her mouth to protect them until it's safe for them to return to the water.
