BLEEDING HEART DOVE

DECORATED DOVE

If you've looked outside recently, you may have spotted a local mourning dove or visiting white-winged dove. Reid Park Zoo is home to another species, or type, of dove: the Luzon bleeding-heart dove. The red-colored feathers on its chest make it look like it is bleeding but, rest assured, it is perfectly fine. Like other doves and pigeons, both parent doves feed their chicks crop milk, which is different from mammal milk but just as nutritious.
